who connected for two scores against Jefferson Forest.

The Red Devils have fairly good size this year, according to line coach Billy Herndon. "And we hav fairly good speed and quickness," the assistant coach adds.

After Saturday night's win over Jefferson Forest, the Red Devils are poised as a strong contender in the Seminole District this season.

"William Campbell has been piced as the team to beat this year," comments coach Wade. He rated Jefferson Forest as among the stronger teams in the district before Saturday night's game, as well. And, Wade has great respect for Appomattox, who last year defeated Rustburg for the first time in eight years.

"And I think we'll be right in the running," Wade concludes. "It looks like we have a pretty strong team this year."

Nimrods gear up for hunting season

With Saturday's opening of dove season, Virginia's nimrod's got their first taste of gunning in the 1981-82 hunting season.

Dove season will continue statewide through Oct. 24, with hunting allowed from noon until sunset each day.

The second half of the split dove season will run from Dec. 19 through Jan. 7, with hunting allowed from one-half hour before sunrise until sunset each day.

The bag limit for doves this year is 12 per day, 24 in possession.

September's dove shoots traditionally warm up the hunter for the coming of the general hunting season. An early season on squirrels begins in Campbell County Sept. 15 and runs through Oct. 14. There's also an early squirrel season in Nelson and Amherst Counties, running from Oct. 1-14.

The regular squirrel season in these counties, as well as in Appomattox, Buckingham, Charlotte, and Prince Edward Counties begins Nov. 2 and runs through January.

The limit on squirrels this year is six per day, 75 per license year.

Another favorite small game animal, the rabbit, comes into season Nov. 9 and is fair game through Jan. 31, in all counties east of the Blue Ridge Mountains. As with squirrels, the limit on rabbits will be six per day and 75 per license year.

Quail, will be in season from Nov. 9 through Feb. 15, in all counties east of the Blue Ridge Mountains. The limit on quail is eight per day, 125 per license year.

Central Virginia's favorite big-game animal, the white-tailed deer, will come into season Nov. 16 and remain fair game through Jan. 5 in Appomattox, Buckingham, Charlotte, and Prince Edward Counties, and in Campbell County east of the Southern Railway line.

Hunters in these areas will be allowed to take one deer per day, two during the season, with does being fair game during the last six days of the season only.

Another favorite of Virginia hunters, the wild turkey, will be in season from Nov. 2 through Dec. 31 in Appomattox and surrounding counties. The limit on these big birds is one per day, two per license year, one of which may be a hen in the fall.

Central Virginia offers excellent upland game hunting in a number of public areas, such as the Appomattox-Buckingham State Forest, as well as on land owned by private concerns which issue hunting permits, such as Westvaco and Continental Can. Sportsmen are reminded, however, that either oral or written permission, or a purchased permit, is required to hunt on any land except that owned by the hunter himself.

Comprehensive rules and regulations for hunters are offered in a free pamphlet published by the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, available at the nearest County Clerk's office and at most businesses which sell hunting licenses or hunting supplies.

EUGENE GUILL OF NEAR OAKVILLE is shown with a 20-pound gobbler he shot last fall during hunting season near Oakville. The bird is typical of the game available to those hunting in the Central Virginia area.

LARRY FRANKLIN OF CONCORD bagged this 10-point buck last fall during deer season. The animal, one of several Franklin has taken during his hunting years, had the best antler spread of any deer the hunter has ever seen.
